Re: Important new book on free market environmental management

Dear Mr. Vice President:

I am happy to present you with a new book entitled, Natural Process, That Environmental Laws May Serve the Laws of Nature, by Mark Edward Vande Pol. It is a groundbreaking achievement proposing, "a free market environmental management system designed to deliver a product that is superior to government oversight at lower costs."

I understand the realities of your schedule and how difficult it can be to carve out even a few minutes of time for personal reading. However, I do hope you will consider finding the time to read portions of the book including the preface or introduction. This would give you a strong flavor of the book before staffing it out.

I do not normally ask such things, but this is an exception. This is a dynamite book that contains such common sense proposals to environmental and free market cooperation that it should not be ignored. I am sending additional complimentary copies to various agency heads.

Please contact me or someone at the Institute if you have questions regarding the book or the author. I would be happy to help you contact the author and engage him in further discussions on the utility of his approaches.

My sincere thanks,

Malcolm Wallop
